SGWU NEWS RELEASE

"EDUCATION AND THE NEW MORALITY" JULY 15 AT S.G.W.U.

With the decline of religion and catechism-type teaching, to what extent should the schools be involved in the current questioning of ethics?

SGWU visiting professors John Wilson and Mark Fisher will have answers when they speak on "Education and the New Morality" Wednesday, July 15 at 8 p.m. in room 937 of the Hall Building. The public is invited.

Wilson, from Oxford, is director of the Farmington Trust Research Unit in Moral Education; Fisher, an educational philosopher, is from Enfield College of Technology, England. Both are with the Summer Session in Education, sponsor of the public lecture series.
